OK understood. We think we know what the problems is. We are looking into it and should have something in place by this time next week. Our apologies that it has been slow. This is another of those teething problems which we wanted to iron out before the start of the season so thanks for posting.

from typing in the url, to the site loading, your looking at about 2-3 seconds. i usually have paddock gossip as my homepage, and will again. In the forum section i can browse different post, and from jumping from one to another, it does it in less than 2 seconds!!. For some reason, i have never had any problems with the new site, or the old site.always been fast. I am guessing it is fast here in Canada because of the time difference and with there not being many users on at the same time as me.;) I'll try to get an official reading of the times of the site and let you know.
